

INFB Photo/Emily Young

INFB members learn about the history of the Indianapolis 500 and view the prestigious Borg Warner Trophy during the evening visit to the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Museum on Feb. 21.

THE FUTURE IS NOW Young Farmers & Ag Professionals come together at Innovate & Grow

Left: Former Indianapolis Colts Tight End Dallas Clark shares his best memory of Peyton Manning during the Q&A portion of his keynote speech. Right: Mary Pat Sass shares how telling honest, everyday farm stories can build trust, strengthen advocacy, and create opportunity, without necessarily becoming an "influencer."

Grant County's Brandon Gall listens during an interactive breakout session where attendees joined topic-specific groups to ask questions, share insights, and learn from peers and experts.

Above: Washington County's Caleb and Aryann Purkhiser participate in the "Pizza & Painting" industry tour following a day of programming.

Below: Noah Poynter of Putnam County talks about the latest advancements and the future of spray drone technology.

Karen Wischmeier of Wischmeier Tax & Accounting leads a session on "Taxes without Tears: The Basics."

Following the "Don't Get Blown Away by Severe Weather" session, attendees made severe weather kits. In addition to taking one home, extras were made for Dubois County Farm Bureau.

CJ Blue of Laporte County holds an American alligator during the Hedgehog Hannah show for kids.

Left: INFB Executive Director of Public Policy Katie Nelson shares information on the MAHA movement and how it's influencing policy, markets and demand. Right: Indiana Farm Bureau Leadership Development Coordinator Dustin Homan listens to President Randy Kron address the county YF&AP chairs about their role within INFB.

INFB Photos/Robert Herrington
From left: Colten and Molley Hasenour of District 9, Austin and Payton Sinders of District 7, Collin and Katie Pennington of District 5 and Isaac and Jenna Blue of District 1 were recognized as outgoing state committee members after serving two-year terms.

Floyd County's Brock Kiesler lip syncs "Let it Go" from Frozen as part of the Playlist Bingo contest.